

Privacy Policy

The national Tokyo University of Marine Science and Technology (hereinafter, "the University") operates the public homepage of the University (<http://www.kaiyodai.ac.jp/>; hereinafter, "this Website").

The University implements appropriate measures as described below in order to protect the privacy of users of this Website. Please read this Privacy Policy when using this Website. This Privacy Policy may be reviewed and updated, so please check for the latest updates.

Provision of Personal Information

The University will only collect personal information from users to the extent necessary to achieve the purpose(s) of such collection. In addition, personal information will be collected by appropriate and reasonable means.

Personal information that can be used to identify a specific user will not be collected unless voluntarily provided by said user.

The University may request users of this Website to provide their personal information for the purpose of providing information about the University.

Management and Storage of Personal Information

The University will ensure that personal information receives the care of an individual responsible for its management, and manage it appropriately. In addition, the University will strive to protect the personal information of users and implement appropriate safety measures against risks. Such risks include, but are not limited to, external information leakage, information loss, or unauthorized access.

Use of Personal Information

The University uses personal information that it collects in accordance with this Privacy Policy. When the purpose of use is clearly stated, the information will be used accordingly.

Disclosure of Personal Information to Third Parties

The personal information of this Website's users will not be disclosed or provided to any third party without the user's consent. However, this will be waived when any of the following conditions apply:

When disclosure is required by law, or at the request of a government agency;

To protect the rights or property of the University's employees or students, or the provider of the information; or

To take urgent action in order to ensure the physical safety of the University, the provider of the information, or the general public.

Application to Disclose, Amend, or Delete Personal Information

If the user who has provided personal information to the University requests disclosure of that personal information, the University will disclose the information to the user within an appropriate time frame and without delay. Also, if the user who has provided personal information to the University requests amendment or deletion of that information, the University will promptly amend or delete that information. However, the forgoing does not apply if the University deems that doing so will impair the rights of a third party or hinder the performance of business.

Governing Laws, etc.

The governing laws of this Privacy Policy shall be the laws of Japan (domestic law and treaty provisions). Disputes concerning the use of this Website shall be submitted to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Tokyo District Court in the first instance.

Ongoing Review

The University will review and update the contents of this Privacy Policy.

Associated Documents

Privacy Policy \(102.7 KB\)